PEN & BRUSH CLUB

Associations (WV)

After 64 years, Pen/Brushers still active

Ts SEP 12 1986

Initiated in the spring of 1922, Terre Haute's Pen and Brush Club club is still in business with 34 active members.

The "Pen" members are published writers; "Brush" participants are artists who have been in, or now compete in, juried art shows.

"The club has always been a mixture of artists and writers and remains so to this day," said Mary Stevens, president of the club for the 1986-87 season. Stevens, along with her husband Howard, has been a free-lance writer for national detective magazines for three decades. He is not a club member, however.

Mrs. Stevens said many members are older, and the club could use some new blood. However, those interested in joining can't sign up — they have to be recommended by members and voted in.

Some say the group has become more of a social club in recent years. Nevertheless, the club was heard from in a very big way this past summer when it donated $2,500 to the Vigo County Public Library. The money came from a bridge party members had — back in 1947.

The gift to the library was $2,000 more than the Pen and Brush members had originally raised due to the considerable interest the money had acquired in 39 years.

"The money is to be used for buying books on writing and art," explained Mrs. Stevens, "especially books that circulate out of the library."

The club is active from October through May and generally meets monthly. Guest speakers are scheduled, with topics usually relating to the arts.

Charles Cady has been a member for three decades. "We invite a lot of different speakers to our meetings," said the long-time watercolor artist. "The meetings are always interesting and provide good fellowship."

Cady, a retired designer, is making plans to study for a time under prominent Vermont artist Frank Webb.

Besides Stevens, officers for this year are Elizabeth Bevington, vice president; Elmer Porter, treasurer; Laura Mason, recording secretary and recorder; and Mardelle Haas, recording secretary.

Recalling the founding of 'Pen & Brush'

Only Yesterday

By Frances E. Hughes

In May of 1922, 23 local women who had produced something in painting or in writing met at the Hotel Deming and formed the Pen and Brush Club.

Almost fifty-four years later that club is still in existence and thriving with a membership of 41 men and women.

Originally, there were just women in the club, eight artists and 15 writers.

Each year, for many years, there was a Christmas party at which a wassail bowl was the feature. Ms. Anna Bowles Wiley, Women's Club Editor and a feature writer for the Terre Haute Tribune, was chairman of this event for many years. Later, Mrs. J. Rudolph Yung served as chairman for several years.

The club's calendar of meetings and events every year now includes a Christmas dinner party. This year's party was Dec. 16 at Ramada Inn. The program was presented by Sister Marie Brendan with the Madrigal Singers from St. Mary-of-the-Woods College.

Another annual event started in the early days of the club was the annual Brain Child Party. This is still a part of the club calendar and is always the last meeting of the club year. This year's party will be May 18 at the Indiana State University Allendale Lodge.

At this party, members display and discuss their accomplishments in their fields during the past year. "Brushes" display their art work and "Pens," their writings.

All of the women on the staff of The Saturday Spectator at that time were charter members of the Pen and Brush Club. They were Norah Claire Williams, manager; Wanda Kantman, Josephine Crowder and Ruth Crawford.

Besides Mrs. Wiley, Miss Margaret Lewis, a feature writer for the Tribune, also was a charter member.

Writers from the staff of the Terre Haute Star who helped organize the club were Mrs. Nora Ball Ragsdale, Women's club editor and feature writer, and Miss Jane Davis, a feature writer.

Terre Haute also had another daily afternoon paper at that time--the Terre Haute Post, a Scripps Howard paper. The representative from that publication who was a charter member of the club was Miss Mabel McKee, feature writer for the post and author of a number of short stories and two books, "The Heart of a Rose" and "The Golden Thread." Miss McKee was later on the staff of the Terre Haute Star.

Other writers who assisted in formation of the club were Mrs. Rudolph Archer, who had published several short stories and feature stories for newspapers; Mrs. Alfred Child, Mrs. Mabel Curry and Mrs. Leon Stern, writers; Miss Mary Ruth Donahan, writer for the Star and editor-in-chief of the State Normal School annual, and Mrs. B. B. White, club woman and writer.

Three art teachers were among the "Brushes" who helped organize the club. They were Miss Rose B. Griffith, art teacher at Wiley High School; Miss Lucy Arthur, teacher of music and drawing at Garfield High School, and Miss Marybelle Jones, art instructor at Sarah Scott Junior High School.

Mrs. J. Rudolph Yung, popular and talented watercolor artist whose flower pictures were especially lovely, was a charter member, as was Mrs. Blanche Bruce, whose paintings were much admired.

Other charter members among the "Brushes" were Miss Alice Failey, Miss Eva Ferree, and Miss Katherine Moore, whose landscape paintings had attracted much attention at an exhibit of Terre Haute artists just preceding the organization meeting.

"Pens" in the club must write for publication and received payment for such writings.

"Brushes" must have been accepted in a juried exhibition.

Although the club has remained almost entirely a social one, it has sponsored art exhibits to promote and encourage area amateur artists for several years.

Serving as officers are Mrs. Barbara Eletson, president; Miss Frances Hughes, vice president; Elmer Porter, treasurer; Mrs. Susan Trueblood, recording secretary, and Mrs. Peggy Cobb, corresponding secretary.

Named as committee chairmen by Mrs. Eletson are Miss Hughes, program; Mrs. Mary L. Moscan, hospitality; Mrs. Mary Stevens, membership; Charles Cady, publicity, and Mrs. Mardelle Haas, telephone.

The first meeting of the year will be held Sunday, Sept. 18 at the Paris, Illinois Bicentennial Art Center and Museum, 104 E. Washington St. Members will meet at noon at the center for a program by Mrs. James O. Stewart. At 1 p.m., members will participate in a buffet brunch at the Paris Country Club.

Mrs. Mildred Stewart is on the board of directors of the Paris Art League, has won many awards for her paintings, and conducts painting classes at her studio. Mrs. Stewart studied painting at the University of Illinois, at Eastern Illinois, and in private classes with John Laska, Frederick Taubes, Harold McDonald, and other workshops. She has exhibited in various exhibitions including Swope Art Gallery, Paris Art League, and Town and Country Exhibitions, University of Illinois.

The Oct. 18 meeting will be at the Charles Eletson residence, 211 Marigold Drive, with Wayne Perry, assistant editor of the TERRE HAUTE TRIBUNE, presenting the program, "Changes in Newspaper Production." Mrs. Virginia Englehart, chairman of the committee, will be assisted by Mrs. Beatrice D'Enbeau, Mrs. Ruth Crary and Mrs. Nitis Shattuck.

Hostess for the Nov. 15 meeting will be Mrs. Peggy Cobb, 814 Collett Ave. Mrs. Daniel Sanders will present the program, "Identification of Glass and China." Hospitality chairman, Mrs. Elizabeth Bevington, will be assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Murray and Miss Helen McGaughey.

The Dec. 14 Christmas Dinner Party will be held at the Country Club of Terre Haute. The program will be announced later. Mrs. Mary K. Fischer, hospitality chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Lilien Kincade and Omer Seaman.

The next program will be held Feb. 21 at the Louise Hansen Studio, 715 S. 34th St. Mrs. Hansen will present the program, with Charles Cady, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Esther Meeks and Mrs. Susie Dewey.

Mrs. Lois Eck, 1831 Ohio Blvd., will be the hostess for the March 21 meeting. Wayne Miller will present the program, "Farrington Grove and Old Terre Haute." Hospitality chairman, Mrs. Virginia Irwin, will be assisted by Mrs. Mabel Nolen, Miss Vivian Bard and Miss Thelma Jobe.

Elmer Porter will present the program "Chinese Snuff Bottles" at the April 18 meeting to be held at his home at 3115 Margaret Ave. Miss Susie Teschmacher will chair the hospitality committee with Mrs. Susan Trueblood and Mrs. Mary L. Moscan assisting.

The last meeting of the year will be held at the Indiana State University Allendale Lodge on May 16. The annual "Brain Child" program will follow the carry-in dinner with committee members Gordan Haist, chairman, Mrs. Helen Kintz, Mrs. Mary Townsley, Mrs. Mary Stevens and Mrs. Helen Hartman assisting.

Sidewalk Art Show June 8-9

Club (T.H.)

T MAY 25 1974

The Pen and Brush Club of Terre Haute will sponsor an area artists sidewalk art show for persons 18 years of age and over on Saturday and ASunday, June 8 and 9, in the Honey Creek mall as a part of the Banks-of-the-Wabash Festival.

Mrs. Louise Hansen, club president, said the exhibit will open at 10 a.m. Saturday and close at 5 p.m. Sunday and will be open for viewing during the Mall shopping hours.

No pre registration will be required and egistration will take place from 10 a.m. to 12 noon Saturday, June 9. A fee of $2.50 will be charged for a four by four foot hanging space and the artist may change the paintings in his hanging space as he chooses.

Paintings to be hung must be suitably framed, Mrs. Hansen reported. Artists in attendance may also bring their portfolios for browsing. A member of the club will be in attendance at the exhibit at all times, but the participating artist will be encouraged to be in attendance because he may make his own sales. No commission will be charged by the club, according to the announcement. Artists will be encouraged to bring easels or other supports to extend display space.

Mrs. Hansen said the show will be disassembled at 5 p.m. Sunday.

Milford Zornes Teaches, Visits, Talks Art Here

Clubs (T.H.)
S OCT 15 1973

By ELIZABETH CIANCONE
Star Staff Writer

Terre Hauteans have been hosts to a quiet celebrity and probably most of them didn't even know it. Milford Zornes, one of the nation's most honored water colorists, has been searching for pictures in and around Terre Haute when not busy teaching his basic skills and philosophy to some 35 lucky individuals who were among the first to sign up for a special three-day workshop sponsored by Charles Cady and the Pen and Brush Club.

Zornes is a comfortable man. Comfortable with people and comfortable with his art. He calls art his "adventure in life." and approaches it with thoughtful enthusiasm.

One of the first things he told the workshop participants was that he would spend two or three days talking art with them and helping them to "design" pictures, and then he would leave. This enables them to absorb and put into practice the principles he has proposed for their consideration.

+ + +

Zornes compared art to baseball. "The rules of both are relatively few and easily learned. It takes time and application and a lot of practice to develop real skill in either."

Working on a table from which his work was reflected to his viewers in a mirror suspended over the working surface, he spoke of how one designs a picture from nature. Using a sketch he had made along the banks of the Wabash River, he demonstrated taking a central focus for his picture which must then be balanced with secondary detail.

After deciding on horizontal and vertical emphasis for his painting, Zornes reduced the structure to an abstraction. For this he employed the Chinese pictographic writing technique. During World War II, Zornes was one of 14 official artists for the United States Army in the Far East, and spent considerable time in southwestern China where he became interested in the abstractions employed in their writing system — a refinement of hieroglyphic writing. Since that time, he has reduced all of his "designed" pictures to an ideogram to see whether or not the picture will "work."

+ + +

Zornes repeated again and again that "All art is an abstraction; three-dimensional reality reduced and applied to flat dimension."

The workshop was to have been limited to 30 participants, but 35 solicited entrance and were included. One student who had attended a Zornes' workshop in New England this past summer, has come down from Chicago to attend the three-day session. Other registrants were from Terre Haute, Brazil, Spencer, Washington and from Marshall and Robinson, Ill.

Zornes has written, "While I have been a teacher of painting almost as long as I have been a painter, I have never sought a teaching position, and I avoid being a professional teacher just as I avoid being commercial in painting." His constant return to nature where he finds his themes as well as his styles have made him a man deeply and obviously contented with his "adventure in life."

Approve Traffic Lights For 25th Near Liberty

Traffic Problems

S OCT 15 1973

By BLAINE AKERS
Star Staff Writer

In the midst of confusion of last week's City Council meeting, the city legislative body rejected a proposal to repeal a 1971 ordinance which calls for the installation of pedestrian-controlled signal lights between Cleveland and Liberty avenues on 25th Street.

Because the repeal was defeated, signal lights will soon be installed at the 25th Street location in the council's attempt to assist pedestrians crossing to and from the K-Mart shopping center. Lights are expected to be installed within 60 days, pending purchase of the signals and survey of the location.

+ + +

Councilman C. Eugene Trummet told the Star Friday he was pleased something was being done for the people in the 25th Street-Liberty Avenue area. Trummel along with councilmen Bill Jarvis, A. C. Malooley and president Pete Chalos voted to install the lights.

The lone Republican councilman stated he did not foresee any major traffic problems, as a result of installing the pedestrian-controlled lights, however area traffic authorities think different.

Recent studies indicate 10,000 vehicles travel the 25th Street
